演讲大师齐格勒曾用火车为例对行动的力量做了很好的诠释。世界上牵引力最大的火车头停在铁轨上，为了防滑，只需要在它的8个驱动轮前面塞上一块一英寸见方的木块，这个庞然大物就无法动弹。然而，一旦这个巨型火车头开始启动了，小小的木块就再也挡不住它了；当它的时速达到100英里时，一堵5英尺厚的钢筋混凝土墙也能轻而易举地被它撞穿。从一块小木块令其无法动弹到能撞穿一堵钢筋水泥墙，火车头的威力变得如此巨大，只因为它开动起来了。

Speech Master Zig Ziglar has a very good interpretation on the importance of action by using a locomotive as example. One largest tractive locomotive in the world stop on the tracks. To prevent skid, eight pieces of wooden cube of one inches are placed in front of each of its wheels to stop movement of the locomotive. However, once this giant locomotive starts, these small pieces of wood are no longer able to stop it. When it reaches 100 miles per hour, a reinforced concrete wall with five feet thickness can be smashed down into pieces easily. What makes the locomotive power become so huge? From being prevented any movement by small pieces of wood to fast and strong enough to smash a reinforced concrete walls, just because the locomotive starts up itself.

莱特兄弟因着向往天空，飞翔于天际的梦想，制造出了滑翔机，后人不断加以改进才有了今天的飞机，而当年他们是被人耻笑痴心妄想的傻瓜。诺贝尔对于炸药的执着，即使遍体鳞伤也不曾改变；贝多芬对于音乐的热爱，即使双耳失聪也要谱写乐章；居里夫人凭着顽强的意志从几顿工业废渣中提炼出微量的镭，爱迪生不眠不休点亮了黑夜的明灯，比尔盖茨的互联网之梦让世界变得很近很近，约伯斯的苹果之梦，让通讯变得便捷凌厉……

The Wright brothers were yearning fly in the sky, so they create a glider. Today's aircraft is the numerous failure and improvements after Wright brothers' efforts. However, Wright were being laughed at as fools whom daydreamed. Nobel was persistent in studying explosives, even tho the experiment may endanger his life. Beethoven didn't change his enthusiasm to music after he found his hearing was getting worse. He continued to compose music even when he was deaf. Marie Curie extracted small amounts of radium from several tons of industrial waste because of her indomitable spirit. Thomas Edison used his numerous sleepless nights to develop light bulb that greatly influenced life around the world. Bill Gates set up IT behemoth Microsoft and tremendously impacted modern computing. And the Apple dream of Steve Jobs brings new experience of communication
